The News in Brief.

The Democratic State Convention met at Madison yesterday, and organized by electing F. W. HORN, President, and J. W. DUNN, Secretary. On the 6th ballot for Governor the vote stood: ROBINSON, 94; DEWEY, 78; MARTIN, 32.

The Grand Haven steamers arrived at Detroit yesterday. They will reach Milwaukee on Saturday at 11 A, M.

The "Americans" of New York have elected ERASTUS BROOKS, of the Express, delegate to the National Convention.

From Princeton, Ky., we have an account of the lynching of one JESSE WILLIAMS, who was under arrest, charged with murdering one of his slaves.

A fire at Cleveland yesterday destroyed the pail factory of JOHN BOUSFIELD. Loss $15,000; insured $8,000.

MCCREA, who killed CLARK, a pro-slavery man, in Kansas, in 1854, was arrested at Leavenworth yesterday.

RAILROAD SUITS.—Two suits against the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad Company were decided at Sandusky, a few days ago. The first was brought by a laborer who had his ribs broken by the caving in of an embankment, and who claimed damages for injuries received. The jury gave him nothing. The second suit was for damages sustained by an individual who was put off an emigrant train, six miles from Upper Sandusky, after he had tendered his fare. He claimed that he was obliged to walk six miles which caused a fit of sickness. The case was tried in the Common Pleas Court, some time ago, and a verdict of $600 rendered against the Company. The Company appealed to the District Court, but the verdict in the Common Pleas was affirmed.

THE SOUTH AND THE SLAVE TRADE.—The Louisville Journal, an earnest opponent of re-opening of the African Slave-Trade, says in copying a paragraph from an Eastern paper on that subject:

> We don't mean, however, to endorse the declaration that nine-tenths of the people of the South are opposed to the revival of the foreign slave-trade. We fully believe that an overwhelming majority of the Democracy of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi are in favor of the trade, and we have not the least doubt that most, if not all of the Democratic organs in those States will sustain us in the opinion. It is perfectly manifest to us, that, within two or three years, every man in those States or out of them that does not go for the Congo traffic, will be denounced by the Southern Democracy as a dirty Abolitionist and a base traitor.

BELOIT COLLEGE.—The fall term of this institution will commence on Wednesday, the 8th of September next. Candidates for admission to the college classes will be examined on Wednesday.

SAD ACCIDENT AT RACINE.—Last Wednesday evening a terrible accident, resulting in the death of a very worthy man, occurred in the following manner: Mr. Thomas Morris, engineer in the Threshing Machine works of J. I. Case, Esq., had taken home a load of water upon a wagon, and returning to the stable, one of the empty barrels rolled forward, frightening the horse, which started to run over Fourth St. Bridge, pitching Mr. Morris between the cross bar of the shafts and the horse's legs. Running round Mr. Case's blacksmith shop into the river, he was stopped, and immediate aid rendered, but the unfortunate man was beyond all hope, his head being frightfully cut, and his neck and shoulders broken. Whether it was caused by striking anything, or by the kicking of the horse, 'tis impossible to say.

Mr. Morris has been in the employ of Mr. Case for upwards of six years, and leaves an almost heart-broken wife and six children.—He was a Welshman by birth, and about 40 years of age. He was an industrious mechanic, affectionate parent and most worthy citizen, whose untimely end will be sincerely mourned by all who knew him.—Advocate, Aug. 24th.

BONE AND SINEW VS. REAPERS.—It would seem almost superfluous for Manny or McCormick to rack their brains to improve on the numerous patents for Horse Reapers, when the country produces such men as Mr. —— Stannton, of Solon, McHenry county, who, we are informed, thinks nothing of cradling his six acres of wheat per day, and do it one day after another, all through the harvest. It takes two men to keep up with him in raking and binding as fast as he lays it down for them. This is extraordinary for one man power, when you know that nine or ten acres per diem is considered a good day's work for the best of reaping machines. —Waukegan Gazette.

CENSUS REVELATIONS IN SOUTH CAROLINA.—A census is now being taken in South Carolina which will bring to light some curious and suggestive facts as to the relative increase of the white and black races. It is stated that in seventeen parishes in which the enumeration has been made, there is a decrease of the white population of over 5,000 since the census of 1855, while the blacks during the same period have largely increased in number. Should corresponding results follow in the rest of the State, there can be no denying the fact that it is a fair way of being Africanized. The opening of the Slave Trade would only precipitate a result inevitable anyhow.—Chicago Press and Tribune.

"THE FANCY" COMING.—Within the last week, probably not less than two hundred gamblers have arrived in Chicago, to make arrangements for the National Fair. Cincinnati, St. Louis, Vicksburg, Memphis, New Orleans, Baltimore, Wheeling, and even Mobile; are represented among this influx of blacklegs. One of them, who arrived two or three days ago, is said to have brought with him no less than $75,000, with which to start a faro bank.

We are obtaining a list of names of these worthies for publication, and will, if we can find them out, also notify the public of the places where their infamous business is carried on.—Chicago Times, 24th inst.

A BIG STRIKE.—At the last accounts from London, sixty thousand skilled artisans engaged in the erection of buildings, and at least half that number of unskilled assistants, were on a strike for higher wages. These ninety-five thousand workmen, and their families dependent, on them, comprising no less than 400,000, have all refused to labor, unless they can secure higher wages. Great suffering will no doubt be endured before these men go to work again, yet go to work they eventually must.

Correspondence of the Sentinel.

SUGAR CREEK, August 20.

Editor of the Sentinel:—As I am now spending some time in the country, I have an opportunity of observing things as they really are, and I wish to post you and your city readers up a little. The wheat and oats have been all secured in the best of order, the yield will be good and the quality extra. Farmers do not seem disposed to thresh and market at present. Potatoes are nearly ruined by the drought. Corn has also suffered very much. I have seen some good sized fields that never can be of any use, except for fodder. I heard one farmer say that he should commence to cut his corn stalks next week. There is but little barley—what there is, is very nice and white.

The people here are nearly all Republicans. Occasionally I meet an old hard-head, and I think they should be preserved as curiosities, to prove that there was once a Democratic party in Walworth county.

Yours, &c., CHICKEN SHOOTER.

An Alarming Anagram.

(From the Albion.

Among the curiosities, not of literature—but of letters, the Anagram was wont to be a favorite in the days of a by-gone generation. Who, for instance, has not smiled blandly over that famous transposition, which aptly converts "HORATIO NELSON" into Honor est a Nalo.

The taste, however, for this laborious trifling has almost passed away; nor do we propose to open the subject of cabalistic lettering. Our only purpose is to offer a new specimen of its eccentricities, which came upon us recently during a vain attempt to solve certain mysteries that occupy just now many serious minds. It is commended alike to snappers up of unconsiderable trifles, and to readers who chance to be imbued with a little tinge of superstitious sensitiveness.—We strive to hope, that, though almost as curious, it is not so unimpeachably appropriate as the one quoted above. The name, so much in men's mouths, Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, may be this method by converted into, An open plot—arouse, Albion!

TWO OFFICERS STABBED.—On Thursday last, Mr. Albert Tucker, Deputy Sheriff, and Constable Hildebrand, went out on the Waukau road some eight miles, into the Town of Omro, to take possession of some grain, which they had levied upon the day before, to satisfy an execution against the owner, Mr. Alonzo Rogers. They were engaged in the barn, measuring up the grain, when Mr. Rogers entered, and coming up behind them, stabbed them both so quickly that they had no time to defend themselves. Indeed, Mr. Tucker says he did not see the knife at all. He knew he had been struck, but did not suspect that a knife had been used, until he saw the blood forcing itself through his clothes. Tucker was stabbed in the right breast, the knife, which seems to have been a common butcher knife, penetrating between the ribs into the lungs. For some time it was thought that he must die, but he is now doing well, with a fair prospect of recovery. Hildebrand saw a blow coming, and threw up his arm to ward it off, when he received the knife through the fleshy part of his arm, just above the elbow. The large artery in the arm was cut entirely off, and he bled most profusely. The blood was, however, soon stopped, and he is doing well. Rogers staid around the barn a few minutes, until some persons coming up, he took to the woods, and has not been seen since. A large number of men from this city, scoured the woods until Saturday afternoon, when they mostly gave up the hope of finding him and returned home.

While a party of men were searching for Rogers, they unexpectedly found Blake, who escaped from jail, on the night it was burned, and they brought the gentleman to town, and delivered him to the proper officers.—Oshkosh Democrat, 23d.

A WICKED OUTRAGE.—We learn from a gentleman of Niles that when the Eastern Mail train on the Michigan Central was about half a mile this side of that city yesterday, a pistol shot was fired into one of the cars. The ball, or whatever the pistol was loaded with, broke the glass on the side of the car on which the shot was fired, and passed through the opposite window, the glass of which was up. It was fired through the last window in the saloon car, and fortunately no one was in the seat. No reason can be imagined for the dastardly outrage, as the Central Railroad Co. is not known to have an enemy in the State. If any one had been in the seat opposite the window through which the ball passed, he would undoubtedly have been killed.—Detroit Advertiser, 23rd.

ITEMS LOOKING UP.—The local reporter of the New Orleans Delta was married to a rich Southern belle. The wedding took place between eight and nine in the evening and from that time to an advanced hour next morning the festivities were kept up with increasing activity. The entertainments provided for the guests, who numbered over five hundred, were dancing, fireworks, a concert, poetical and dramatical recitations, and then dancing again, until daylight reminded the company it was time to separate. One of the features of the evening was the employment of a colored orchestra instead of the German band usually hired on these occasions.

A CURIOUS CIRCUMSTANCE—SHOWER OF SNAKES.—Immediately after the great shower of last week, a gentleman residing on Grand River street, on walking about his premises, discovered a large number of striped or garter snakes, averaging about 6 inches in length. Some of them were on the front porch, four feet from the ground, and some on the kitchen door-steps. One friend commenced killing the reptiles until he had dispatched forty-seven by actual account. His neighbors also killed quite a large number, and the finding of the "snaix" continued for four or five days. From their being found occupying elevations to which they could not have crawled, the inference is irresistible that they rained down.—Detroit Tribune.

BEWARE OF METALLIC SKIRTS.—The following should serve as a warning to the ladies. It is from the first issue of the Milton (N. C.) Chronicle:

> "A thunder storm passed over the southern section of this county on Tuesday of last week, which blew down trees and corn, and damaged lands considerably by washing. During the raging of the storm, the lightning struck a hoop skirt, made of brass, that stood suspended by an open window in the house of Mr. John Webster, melting it and setting the house on fire, knocking down one of the female occupants of the tenement, who received no other damage than the stunning blow."

CHILD POISONED.—A little child of Mr. Stilwell's, about a year old, living on Bay street, on Thursday last, got hold of some fly poison—preparation of colbat and arsenic, which its mother, a few moments before, had placed under the stove, for the purpose of getting it out of its reach, as she was going out for a few moments. On her return she found that it had discovered and partaken of it. It died in a few hours.—Oshkosh Dem.

THE ARTESIAN well of Columbus, Ohio, has reached a depth of 2,056 feet, the auger going down at the rate of four feet a day. The formation of rock through which the bore is passing is something unprecedented in the history of Artesian wells. On Tuesday the augur was working in solid lime stone, yesterday in sandstone, and to-day be in limestone again. We think this is a nut for geologists.—Ohio State Journal, Aug. 13.

A LOCKSMITH in Frankfort-on-the-Main has hit upon the ingenious idea of constructing a strong box without any keyholes at all, and which the owner himself cannot open. Inside is a clockwork, the hand of which the owner places at the hour and minute when he again wants to have access to the box. The clockwork begins to move as soon as the lid is shut, and opens the lock from the inside at the moment when the hand indicates.

A VESSEL drawing nearly eighteen feet water has passed through the improved channel between Quebec and Montreal, and it is confidently anticipated in the next two or three years, Montreal will be accessible from the sea for vessels drawing twenty-one feet.

THIRTY MORMONS, male and female, arrived at New York, on Saturday, from Liverpool, on board the ship Atlantic. These emigrants brought with them a variety of choice farm stock for use in this country.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—3 P. M.

Valuable Surgical Discovery.

The correspondent of the New York Express gives an account of a valuable medical discovery, which, if all is true that is stated of it, will work a miracle in the treatment of certain diseases:

PARIS, July 28.

* * * A medical discovery of much value, destined to effect a great amelioration in the treatment of ulcers, abscesses, flesh wounds, &c., has lately been made by two former internes, or House Surgeons of the Hospice de la Charite, and by them generously offered to the world, without fee or reward. At the last sitting of the Academy of Sciences, the celebrated Dr. Velpeau demanded permission to make an important communication, and announced that the two young practitioners in question, Messrs. Crome and Demeaux, had paid him a visit for the purpose of presenting to his notice their discovery and explaining to him its results. Messrs. Crome and Demeaux have found a process for the complete and instantaneous disinfection of animal matter. The action of the disinfecting agent arrests the progress of decomposition, and effectually prevents the generation of insects. The substance prepared for use, costs here about one franc for a hundred pounds, and the expense in America would probably be still less. The following is the formula, as given by the inventors themselves:

Plaster of commerce, reduced to a fine powder, 100 parts; coal tar, one to three parts. The mixture of the two substances is effected with ease by the aid of a mortar, or by any other appropriate mechanical means. The application of this composition to the dressing of sores or wounds requires a particular preparation. A certain quantity of the powder, prepared according to the formula, is diluted with olive oil to the consistency of a paste or ointment. This species of paste or salve is of a dark brown color, has a slightly luminous odor, and may be kept in a closed jar for an indefinite period. The oil unites the powder without dissolving it, and the composition has the property of absorbing infectious liquids the instant it is applied to the sore which produces them. The application may be mediate or immediate. In the latter case, that is to say, placing the composition directly in contact with the sore, no pain whatever is produced, on the contrary, the salve has a detersive action, cleanses the sore and favors cicatrissation.

In the course of his remarks, Dr. Velpeau mentioned the case of a patient at the Charite, to whom the process had been applied, with perfect success. This person was afflicted with a frightful abscess in the thigh, from which exuded a prurulent matter of a most offensive odor, rendering the operations of the surgeon both painful and difficult. This matter, mixed with a powder held in readiness by the two experimentalists, was disinfected in one minute, touched with impunity by the spectators, and applied beneath their noses, without leaving a trace of unpleasant odor.

As has been seen, the elements of this composition are of the simplest character, and though intelligence of the discovery could not have reached the medical faculty of the United States in advance of this letter, your own surgeons will doubtless receive, by the same mail which carries this, every corroborating particular. My desire is to make known the event throughout the country, and I sincerely hope this paragraph may be widely copied by your exchanges. As Dr. Velpeau himself observed at the close of his observations before the Academy, too much publicity cannot be given to so valuable a discovery as well as the disinterestedness of its authors. In their report, Messrs. Crome and Demeaux state that the composition may be applied in the form of a poultice, on cotton, and laid on the wound. They demonstrate that their mode of dressing possesses the double property of disinfecting morbid products and of absorbing their liquids. This last circumstance entirely obviates the necessity of lint—which is one of the most important features of the discovery.

THE CITY.

SENTINEL READING ROOM.

WE have opened in connection with our new Counting Room, 207 East Water st., a Reading Department, where all the leading Daily Papers in the United States and Canada are regularly placed on file, for the benefit of those who may wish to see them. Strangers visiting the city are invited to avail themselves of our "Free Reading Room" at their pleasure.

Reception of the New Steamers Milwaukee and Detroit.

Programme of reception, as prepared by the Committee of Arrangements:

1st. The arrival of the steamers Milwaukee and Detroit will be welcomed by a salute of Artillery, from the Washington Artillery Company, Capt. BADE, and the Light Guard Artillery Squadron, Capt. BINGHAM, as follows: One field piece of the Washington Artillery Company will be stationed at the North Point, and as soon as the steamers are fairly in sight, will fire two guns, and as they pass abreast of the battery, will fire thirteen guns and be dismissed.

2nd. One field piece of the Washington Artillery Company will be stationed at the head of Wisconsin street, and fire the same as battery No. 1, and be dismissed. When battery No. 2 commences to fire the thirteen guns, it is requested that all the Engine House, Church and other bells in the city will be rung, and continue for fifteen minutes.

3. Young America will be stationed on the dock of the Railway Company, and will fire two guns as soon as the steamers appear in the Harbor, and as they come up to the dock will fire thirteen guns, and after the presentation of colors will fire a National salute.

4. As soon as the steamers are properly moored to the dock, the Mayor of the City, and the Committee, will proceed on board the "Milwaukee" and present the colors.

5. The First Regiment Wisconsin State Militia, Col. KING commanding, will parade in honor of the occasion and march to the dock of the Railway Company, to receive the excursionists and escort them to the Newhall House.

6. The Boat Clubs of the city are particularly requested to man their respective boats, and to meet the steamers on their entrance into the harbor.

7. There will be a Torch-Light Procession in the evening, under the direction of the Milwaukee Fire Department.

The Military, Firemen and Citizens are earnestly requested to assist the committee in properly carrying out the above programme, and make the celebration one worthy of the occasion.

The steamers will arrive on Saturday, the 27th, at 11 A. M., when it is hoped there will be a general turn out of our citizens to meet and greet the steamers and those on board of them.

Published by order of the Committee.

CALEB WALL, Ch'n.

W. HENRY HOLLAND, Sec'y.

THAT NEW PAPER.—Messrs. FLAVIN BROTHERS, we are assured by a prospectus, will enter the arena on the first of September and "commence the permanent publication" of the Milwaukee Daily National.—Messrs. FLAVIN announce themselves practical printers, with a liberal capital, and promise to make every endeavor to outstrip all competition. Our own private opinion is that a reliable democratic paper is needed hereabouts—but whether the need is sufficient to support another journal remains to be tested. Milwaukee is bountifully blessed with papers already—let us hope the National will not make the blessing heavier than we can bear.

If promises are anything, the new sheet will be quite readable, and we, in the plentitude of our compassion, can no more than wish the Messrs. FLAVIN BROS, a modicum of that unprecedented success which has thus far attended all attempts to run newspapers in Milwaukee. If they will accept of a little advice we would confidentially suggest the policy of making hay while the sun shines, for there's no telling what might turn up after the next National election.

Have We a Quiz Among Us?

The cry is up and scribblers are my game.
—English Bards and Scotch Reviewers.

I have been not a little amused at the literary warfare that has been going on in the Milwaukee press, in regard to the poetical merits of a certain fair lady, unknown to fame, but thrust upon the readers of the Wisconsin, by the musical cognomen of "Hattie Tyng."

How much there is, by-the-by, in a name. For example, there is nothing in the world so delicate and delicious as a fricassee of frogs.

but not to compare to a neatly gotten-up dinner of bull-frogs. But you must call them birds to make them go down with gusto to an American palate. A rose by any other name would smell as sweet, even though asafœtida were the soubriquet; but certain am I that no other name would so well become the sweetly artless verses under consideration, as that of "Hattie Tyng" subscribed to them. The name itself is sweetly suggestive of the poetry.

But, gentlemen of the "grey goose-quill," referring to your recent critics, let me, in all courtesy, ask, have you no better way of amusing yourselves than by unmercifully quizzing a young lady thus modestly courting the favor of the Muse? (I have thrown the soft mantle of charity around my shoulders this morning, which I fear, Mr. Sentinel, you left off, when penning the article in your issue of August 15th, and with this amiable garment upon me, I cannot attribute to your youthful friend, Miss Hattie, the device of having herself indited those elaborate articles that appeared in the Wisconsin, under the signatures of "Comius" and "Vernet,")—"Comius" was laughing in his sleeve. He thought his critic a capital joke, and so it was, but was it HATTIE he was quizzing, or the discriminating readers of the family paper? If the latter, I am, myself, included in the category, and although I like fun, and relish it about as much as the "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," yet I am not fond of it at my own expense. If "Comius" were not quizzing, then I can only suppose, from his rapturous flight into the seventh heaven of ecstatics, that he had been indulging a little too freely in Mr. Swiveller's friend, "the rosy," for

> If with water you fill up your glasses
> You'll never write anything wise,
> Since wine's the true horse of Parnassus,
> That carries a bard to the skies.

Of course he is too diffident, to claim the honors of a bard, on his own account; if he can tack them on to the immortal HATTIE, it is all he will ask from us. I pray that when he writes another critique, he will waive the sparkling glass of wine, and give us a little sober, common sense.

Next comes "Vernet," who is "Comius" unhorsed, or "Comius" brought down from his stilts, and the calm, rational way in which our pedestrian critic, treats of HATTIE's rhymes, is truly refreshing. It is charming to see so much truthfulness and candor. He hits "the golden mean" most beautifully; neither fulsome praise nor rude discouragement, but with winning frankness, ranks HATTIE TYNG with the author of "Childe Harold," with KEATS, who sang till his impassioned heart broke with singing, and lastly, with our own gifted, and delightful LONGFELLOW.

Oh HATTIE, sweet as "the trickling patter of soft baby feet," is the Lyric voice of flattery—most sweet to female ears—nay, if the truth must be told, masculine ears have been charmed to depth by the sound! But listen calmly to the sober voice of reason whispered by one of our own sex. Before you can hope to sit at the feet of these great masters, you must pluck a quill from a Seraph's wing, and in order to do this, we have the assurance of a great English writer, that it will be necessary first to catch a Seraph.—But where to look for one, that is the question. Seraphims may have been plentiful enough in Dr. YOUNG's time, but in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine, I fear the search would prove fruitless. We have, to be sure, enough of angels in female form, but they are minus the fundamental part of a Seraph—the wings. Can any one suggest a substitute? When it was proposed many years ago in the British Parliament, to abolish the inhuman practice of employing children to sweep chimnies, the expedient suggested was to draw a live goose up and down the chimney by a rope, and when this was objected to on the ground of cruelty to the goose, it was submitted that a couple of ducks would answer as well.

Can any of the readers of the Sentinel, suggest to the fair HATTIE, as satisfactory a substitute for a live goose.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PIC-NIC.—A pic-nic will be given to the children of the Public Schools in the city of Milwaukee on Wednesday, the 31st inst. There are 3,938 children attending the public schools, and the arrangements to accommodate and provide for the comfort of so great a number must be extensive.—The published notice of the committee of arrangements show that these things have been taken into consideration, and provision will be made for the enjoyment of all who wish to join in so laudable an undertaking.

There will be a baggage wagon at each School House to carry the satchels and baskets of the children to the appointed ground.

Music, singing, and some brief addresses may be expected during the day.

The Procession will move from the Public Square as soon after 9 o'clock as it can be formed, and will remain at the Grove until about 5 P. M.

WE ARE INDEBTED to COOK for a basket of juicy fruit. Pears that would tempt a statue—Apples that would tempt all of Eve's daughters—Peaches with a bloom rivaling the pedestrian rouge on Main street—Grapes, the eating of which never lead you to think they might be spelt with an i—O COOK, what a raw present is this. Didst thou never think, O COOK, that thy water melons necessitated a dray.

COOK as a fruiterer is now certainly on the apex of fame. We shall bow to COOK when we meet him, even though he wears a tomato for a breast-pin and blackberries for studs.

He knew, cunning fellow, that we had long been preparing a lengthy article in relation to his celebrated stand on Wisconsin street, and this basket was sent in to precipitate it. If there is any one in Milwaukee who will believe the locale of this sheet under oath, we will assure them, (when we get the peach out of our mouth,) that M. C. COOK & Co., of 22 Wisconsin street, are the only men in town that give their goods away fresh.

DISAPPEARANCE OF A WOMAN.—The wife of THOMAS KELLY, of Clyman, Wis., left her home on the 10th of July, and has not been seen or heard of since that time. Her maiden name was Mary Hix. She was seen in Watertown on that day, inquiring her way to Milwaukee, saying she was going to Milwaukee on foot, and from there to Lockport, N. Y., where her mother lives. Any information in regard to her, addressed to "THOMAS KELLY, Clyman, Dodge county, Wis.," will be more than thankfully received.

POST-MASTER STEVENS will answer the communications and queries of "F."—provided the latter will give his name to the public.

THE GERMAN THEATRE.—The theatre having been leased by Mr. BALATKA, the Director of the Musical Society, for the coming season, commencing in October, will present an unusually rich programme during the season, we have no doubt. Mr. B. has engaged, or arranged preliminaries with some artists of superior merit for performances, and as a sample, he intends to open the season with Mehul's splendid opera of "Joseph and his Brothers," with Mr. KLIEN as Joseph. The opera is one of the most beautiful ever written—abounding with rich melodies, and excelling in superior instrumentation, indicating Mehul's master-genius in every part. The text is taken from the Bible, and treats of Joseph's delivery to the Egyptians, and his subsequent fortunes. We have heard a portion of the opera at rehearsals, and would particularly mention the airs and songs of Joseph, Benjamin and Jacob.

We hope Mr. BALATKA will be as successful in his new undertaking, as he has been in the Musical direction of the Musical Society.—Free Democrat.

THE PIC-NIC TUESDAY.—The pic-nic of the Plymouth Church Sabbath School and Congregation was largely attended and passed off delightfully. The grounds of Mr. CARY, which are very appropriate for such an occasion, were filled with a happy throng, and we could not but see that the "old folks" enjoyed themselves fully as much as the young people. The Cornet Band furnished the music, while refreshments in abundance were provided for all who wished.—We judge the occasion was generally enjoyed.

THE Knickerbocker for September is right welcome. It comes to us crowded with the choicest summer reading imaginable—for instance, "The stories and pictures of the Hudson." It contains a profusely illustrated paper on Saratoga that will be especially interesting just now. Then follow a long list of excellencies too numerous to mention, finishing with that 'are gossip—well worth the price of the magazine alone. There is a skillful mixture of the solid, and the sacred, and the social in this periodical; a careful alternation of wit and wisdom that adapts it to all who love good and varied reading.

NOTICE.—The Annual Meeting of the Bankers' Association will be held at the "Newhall House," in Milwaukee, commencing on the seventh day of September, at two o'clock P. M. (Not on the eighth, as erroneously stated in a notice recently sent to you.)

Business of importance will come before the Association, and a general attendance is desired.

Republican State Convention.

A Republican State Convention will be held at the City of Madison, in the Assembly Hall of the Capitol on Wednesday, the 31st day of August next, at 12 o'clock M., for the purpose of nominating candidates for State officers to be supported by the party at the ensuing general election; and to transact any other business that may properly come before it.

As the subject of selecting delegates to the next National Convention may be entertained and acted on by the Convention, it is suggested that the people in their primary caucuses, and the district conventions make such expression as will intimate to their delegates and the State Convention, the general sentiment of the State on that subject.

Each Assembly District will be entitled to two delegates in the Convention.

It is recommended that District Conventions for the selection of delegates be held throughout the State, on or before the 25th day of August, and that committees make early calls for that purpose; and it is especially urged that every district be duly represented in the Convention.

The Irish Revival.

The religious awakening now going on in Ireland is in many respects one of the most remarkable events of the age. The excitement is confined to no creed or class but extends through the entire community. Belfast, Coleraine and Londonderry seem to be the center of its influence. We are assured there is nothing impassioned, excitable or superstitious in the character of the people, who, in this particular differ from the Celts of the South and West. In many particulars the characteristic of the revival bear a striking resemblance to the late religious awakening in this country—for instance the union of all ministers and Christians in the work. Ministers of the Episcopal sect, who would not a few months ago unite with a Baptist, or recognize his ministerial claim—Presbyterians, Methodists of various sects—all mingle and cordially co-operate. "We have no isms in this town at present," says a correspondent, "nothing but Jesus, the Savior of Sinners." Asperites, jealousies, unkindly feeling, are melting down. One of the Bishops has presided at a large united meeting, and uttered sentiments in his address worthy of the Christian, if not in harmony with the lofty pretensions of Episcopacy.

The spirit of prayer evidently marks it. It is the most prominent. Never was there anything like it. In many places, every second house in the streets is a bethel. In houses, shops, ware-rooms, squares, school-rooms, churches and chapels, they meet for prayer. They gather in thousands.—Every place of worship is opened almost from morning till night. Only the other day the beautiful Botanical Gardens at Belfast were visited by about forty thousand people, who in different groups spent the day in various acts of religious services. A week or two ago the new court house at Coleraine was to be opened to the people. Arrangements were made for celebrating the event in the usual manner. As the day approached no one could be found to open or attend the ball. Meetings for prayer were proposed. They were hailed by the community, and the place was crowded from morning till night by thousands of devout and interested persons. Over the whole population a deep and absorbing religious feeling is spread. Trade is interrupted. Mills sometimes cannot go on. Editors apologize now and then to their readers that their paper is delayed on this account, and markets are scarcely attended—while railway directors are putting on special trains, and allowing them to run till a late hour, for the convenience of parties attending religious meetings from a distance. All churches are sharing in this tide of blessing. None are exempt.

Of course, the accounts are replete with miraculous interpositions and supernatural displays of power. We hear that at Ballymoney during the earlier stages of the awakening—a man was praying with great earnestness for a direct manifestation of the spirit as on the day of Penticost, when suddenly fifteen individuals were prostrated, and with loud cries for mercy, borne off by the crowd.

At Rashasken, while one prayed that the Holy Spirit might descend as with fire—a flash of lightning filled the building at the moment, and struck the congregation with awe—so that out of 700 there were 100 cases of decided conviction.

In Belfast on the morning of June 29th the spacious grounds of the Royal Botanic Gardens were obtained and thrown open to the multitude for the purpose of holding a prayer meeting. Some idea of the interest felt in the proceedings may be imagined when we state that it is computed that no fewer than 15,000 individuals arrived in Belfast, that from 35,000 to 40,000 persons in all were present at the services. The leading streets of the town presented, during midday, a most remarkable aspect, particularly after the arrival of trains.

Altogether we think it may safely be said the present religious movement in Ireland is one of the most extraordinary on record.—The English papers come to us laden with long reports of the immense meetings, and the enthusiasm of the masses.

Book Notice.

LIFE AND LIBERTY IN AMERICA: or Sketches of a Tour in the United States and Canada, in 1857-8. By CHARLES MACKAY, L. L. D. F. S. A., in two Volumes, with Ten Illustrations. London, SMITH, ELDER & Co., 65 Cornhill; 1859.

Many readers will doubtless run through this book, out of mere curiosity to see what a stranger has said of us. Another class will ransack its pages in a terrier-like search after some gross error, or some sneer at our country, whereon to vent their hatred of "the Britishers." Still another and not less intelligent portion of the public, will neglect to look at the book at all, assuming very complacently that a foreigner, after only a few months sojourn, will be incapable of presenting any instruction or amusement to those who have always lived here, and "know all about it."

Each of these will make a mistake. Neither will take the proper course. The first will be disappointed to find no very startling views of our institutions taken by the author. The second will be disappointed to find Dr. MACKAY's volumes pretty faithfully confirming the statements of his preface, that "he went to America neither to carp, to sneer, nor to caricature, but with an honest love of liberty and a sincere desire to judge for himself and to tell the truth. He returned with a greater respect for the people than when he first set foot upon the soil. On American soil the highest destinies of civilization will be wrought out to their conclusions. Progress crawls in Europe, but gallops in America."

A traveller who writes thus will scarcely provoke the wrath of the most violent Anti-English blockhead.

Indeed the silly talk of over-patriotic Yankees, against British tourists and England generally, is becoming less frequent and absurd. The misrepresentations of traveling "John Bull" are suffered with more fortitude than they once were. Our sensible people have made up their minds to submit to an occasional mistake, and learn what they can even from their traducers. It has been well said:

> The American eagle would no doubt be profoundly humiliated in his eyrie, if he thought we could learn lessons of any kind from the foreign world. But that bitter fate is, we fear, in store for the noble bird. Indifference has succeeded thin-skinned sensitiveness to foreign sarcasm; the next step may be an honest desire to profit by criticism from any quarter, without regard to its motives. There are lessons to be learned from the cavils of the most unkind censors; there is sound advice and instruction even in Martin Chuzzlewit.

Nor will the third class—who fling aside this book unread—act wisely. There are many of the observations of Dr. MACKAY worthy of the notice of the best of us; and we venture to say that many facts are mentioned which would escape the eye of an American, while under his nose, for a whole lifetime.—As the changes in the appearance of a person or a place are recognized more readily by a visitor, after an interval of absence, than by those who see the gradual daily transformation; so there are many aspects of our social and political life furnishing themes for thought and speculation, which a stranger will observe, while an American, taking them as a matter of course, would never bestow upon them the slightest reflection.

There is much in these volumes which every well-informed American citizen, may read with profit; more that he would read with pleasure. For, with the exception of Slavery, Mr. MACKAY is by no means severe upon our faults. While not without English prejudicies, he is no bigot, and he has the candor to speak well of whatever he admires or respects.

The first thing Dr. MACKAY does, after landing in the city of New York, is to repudiate and discard the authority of SIDNEY SMITH, whose assertion that "this new and vain people, could never forgive England because Broadway was inferior to Bond Street," was prompted by chagrin over private losses. Dr. MACKAY says: "Bond Street! quotha? Bond Street is no more to be compared to Broadway for beauty, extent, life, bustle and wealth, than a dingy old farthing of the reign of GEORGE the Third, to a bright new sovereign of the days of Queen VICTORIA. There is no street in London that can be declared superior or even equal, all things considered, to Broadway. It is longer, more crowded, and fuller of fine buildings than the Boulevard des Italiens; as bustling as Cheapside; and, more than all, it has a sky above it as bright as the sky of Venice."

The size, magnificence and system of the hotels of the United States, struck the Doctor with astonishment. He says the British Isles possess no such caravansarais, and even the monster Hotel du Louvre, in Paris, is scarcely to be compared to the St. Nicholas, or even the Astor. The book being intended for English readers contains a full account of hotel life and management, of course uninteresting to the American reader.

Dr. MACKAY visited the principal cities North and South, East and West. The extent of the country, the distances by rail and steamboat—immense to an Englishman—the peculiar phrases of language, the fertility of the soil, the wonderful resources of the different States, the perplexing complications of politics, "the large scale" of everything,—all attract the attention and receive the candid comments of the genial and conscientious tourist.

For whatever errors there are in his book Dr. MACKAY bespeaks the indulgence of his American friends; and he concludes by affirming that his visit strengthened every good impression he had formed of the country and people, and weakened every unfavorable one.

—It is stated that Mr. DICKENS, is about to pay us a second visit. We are confident he will be less Honized than before, and will see less to ridicule. He is qualified to do us justice. But there is still another eminent Englishman—a patriot and statesman—whom Brother Jonathan would delight to honor; and we hope, by and by, to welcome to our shores the liberal-minded commoner—honest JOHN BRIGHT.

Letter from Chicago.

Correspondence of the Sentinel.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23d, 1859.

The business men of Milwaukee may derive whatever consolation they can from the fact that Chicago is no better off than the "City of Bricks." Trade in every department is dull here, and many a face once jolly and broad, is elongated by the straining stretch of hard times.

Building is going on, however, with considerable activity, and the endless grade change is as much of a nuisance as ever.—"Talk about Chicago going down," said TOM MARSHALL, "she has gone up—eight feet since I was there."

A pleasant shower this morning relieves us of dust. The folks here entertain serious apprehensions of the consequences to them of the real opening of our new route, which we are soon to celebrate. They well may.

Yours, MILWAUKEEAN.

Delegates to the Republican State Convention.

PEPIN, Aug. 17th, 1859.

EDITOR SENTINEL:—The several counties comprising this Assembly District, met at Dunnville to-day, and made choice of OLIVER GIBBS, of Pierce County, and T. C. POUND, of Chippewa county, to represent said District in the State Convention, on the 30th inst.—The Convention passed the following resolutions:

Resolved, That we have the utmost confidence in the integrity and ability of Governor RANDALL and the other Republican State Officers; that we approve the manner in which they have discharged their official duties, and that we earnestly desire their re-nomination.

Resolved, That in the opinion of this Convention the Republicans of the 25th Senatorial District are entitled to a place on the State ticket, and that if it is allowed to them, we hereby tender the name of Hon. MOSES S. GIBSON, for Bank Comptroller.

Yours, &c., L.

SHEBOYGAN, Aug. 20th, '59.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—Colonel FREDERICK AUDE and EUGENE CARY, are the Delegates to the Republican State Convention, for the First Assembly District of this County.—Both are in favor of the re-nomination of Gov. RANDALL. Yours, &c., H.

WOMEN PAINTING AT SARATOGA.—The ladies paint this season; it is all the rage.—Not the old, the faded, those whose beauty is on the wane, but the young also; not rouge laid on with delicate fingers, and with tints hardly discernable to the eye, but laid on with a heavy hand, and with an openness that is worthy of a better cause. In the night the complexion really is dazzling, and the face wears a hue almost angelic in brilliancy. But in the morning, bah! the face looks boiled and resembles a white enamelled side of leather, cracked by the cold weather. If this habit was omitted, and the dresses outside were longer than the under dresses, or if the latter were of better material, if they must be seen, or were more comely, the crowds at this place would be more worthy of inspection. It is the universal remark that there are more commonly dressed women at Saratoga than in any other season, and this, too, is my judgment. Tinsel and untidyness do not go well together. On this account the balls are not attractive.—Boston Journal.

A GENERAL REVIVAL OF TRADE—BUSY TIMES AHEAD.—September, now near at hand, will probably be a remarkably busy month, in every branch of business. The signs, just now, are all that way. The city hotels are full to overflowing. The wholesale auction sales are thronged with merchants from all parts of the country eager to buy. The theatres, that have had their doors shut during the heated term, are furbishing up and preparing to enter upon the fall campaign. The retail dealers generally are doing well, and there would seem to be employment enough to keep the mechanics and working classes steadily employed; at least, if there are any complaints we hear nothing of them. Money is plenty and cheap. Provisions are abundant—and last, but not least, the public health, North, South, East and West, is unexceptionable. "Peace is within our walls, and plenteousness in our palaces," so that if we are not a happy country, with all these blessings, we are insensible to what happiness is—that is all.—N. Y. Express, Aug. 20.

MANIA FOR TIGHT-ROPE WALKING.—All the little boys in Buffalo—and, we presume, in other places in the vicinity of the Falls—who can fix up a rope, are learning to walk it, a la Blondin. Those who can't get a rope, walk board fences, with any piece of board or old stick they can get hold of as a balance pole. We wish the rising generation would strive as hard to emulate those who are engaged in some great practical work, as they do the jugglers and gymnasts in the country.—Buffalo paper.

A YOUNG FELLOW, the son of an eminent dancing master, applying to a friend as to what trade or profession it would be best for him to pursue, was answered, "I think you cannot do better than follow the steps of your father."

FROM UNDER A BUSHEL.

A Days' Shooting---Fruits and Phrenzy.

If ever you come to Missouri—go after chickens—as WE did. Up at the summons of the porter's knuckles on the door. Tread across the dark room and look out of the third story window to see the Chum enveloped in gloom waiting in the street with his frisky team, that seem ghostly in the waning gaslight. Then the hasty toilet under the jet. The—breakfast inhaled—rather than eaten; the fever to be off before the sun looks down the long streets. But who ever accomplishd anything under these circumstances with a satisfactory amount of speed—the breakfast isn't ready, the caps are not to be found, the gun maliciously persists in being anywhere but where you put it. Everybody persists in being outrageously slow and sure—except the Chum whose impatience ascends with the daylight that creeps over the bottom. When at last, the note of preparation is allowed to subside, and we get into the vehicle, old Sol laughs at us through the trees in the East.—But a "hi,"—we hear the "breezy call," and away we go! The drowzy city behind rubs its eyes, not knowing whether to begin its daily hubbub or wait an hour or two longer. Houses, golden roofed, with chimneys of tinsel, sending up the morning incense in amber and vandyke. Eastern windows glittering at the river with the announcement of another slice of summer. A sky, double plated burning through the Illinois oaks. But its "over the prairie," our long shadows dimly defined reaching far out in the western gloom—where the night is crouching down, and our coats buttoned up to repel its dying breath that goes past us fiercely, laden with the odor of burnt grass and flowers—tempered somewhat by the wet kiss of darkness.

"Go! Charley, lively, hi!" and the Chum cracks the whip against the resonant air, and the two "bays" toss and strain to the very lively tune played by the dancing trappings and rattling vehicle.

The city slinks away at our disturbance, back! lime-stone pavements, lamp-posts; compact mansions run away, and the "far-between" houses of the outskirts follow them. Sarburban fragments loom up mellow with morning—polypi that cling to the metropolis without becoming a part of it—now cottage shaped and moulded by competence, with Bridget at the window—now whitewashed and patched, with the mechanic performing his ablutions at the doorway; occasional piles of brick, which fiend proprietors regard as stately, and which might be Swiss or Elizabethan or Greco-Italian—but which were never drawn after BUONAROTTI or PALLADIO and were not modeled by Sir CHRISTOPHER WREN. Now an inn with its quenchless taper trying to ridicule the sunbeams—the cob-web half way house where flies from the city "walk into the parlour" and pay the old spider—in their tipsy munificence—grand sums to wash the lime dust out of their throats. Plank bridges, with the ends looking up at you and turning over under you, every beam treacherously poised so that the first iron shoe turns it edge-wise. Past the gravelly beds of "once wild streams." And now we begin to miss the chaunt ickering of the noisy pets on the fences and well-handles. The scene opens—

> "Past the forest, past the Grange,
> Past the misty mountain range,
> Past the ledges glowing dark,
> Past the hovel, past the tank,
> Past the shaggy gorge profound,
> Echoes over doubtful ground."

"Do you know, that a ride over the prairie in the morning is unhealthy?" asked WOLF.

"No, never heard of such a thing!"

"Nor I, but believe it nevertheless, especially when going after chickens. Anything that over-excites the mind is unhealthy. It shakes all one's insanity loose, and though we call it "sport" and zest, it's but the wild delirium of the savage. Nothing but slaughter will appease it. I verily believe I could sing a Sioux war song from inspiration!"

Whirr! Right from under the horses feet. Pinnated grouse as I live!

"Theoretically and poetically—grouse," said the Chum; "for all practical purposes, chickens—Hi!"

"There are two kinds of sport," persisted Wolf. "Active and passive—animal and intellectual—hunting and fishing—one is dissipation, the other is contemplative, chastening."

"I fully agree with you in the chastening," said Humble Servant.

Another whirr.

"I have always observed that every undertaking in life that necessitates a noise, tends to excite the animal passions. Intellect breathes silence. The searcher after wisdom should not ride on the cow-catcher. Fishing is a sedative, it implies solitude, and solitude is the nurse of enthusiasm, and enthusiasm is the true parent of genius!"

Here we startled a great square house among the trees, its roof cunningly slanting in four ways, and surmounted by a cupola and balusters, giving the whole affair much the appearance of an enormous bag tied up with a square knot at the top. A little "nigger" was swinging on the gate in front. Chum accosted him:

"Diminutive darkey, is old Jake about?"

Peculiar Institution gave himself an extra push and replied: "'Spec he is."

"I 'spec 'Nip' gone after chickens himself."

The sharp thong of the whip happening to wind itself about the "nigger's" abdomen, just here, he came to the ground, a very confused mass of head, limbs and shirt-tail, "Now, then, go and send Jake here!" and away went the jackanapes, with his hand over the fleshy perturberance of his back. Arriving at the corner of the house he looked back, placed his black digets at right angles with his nose, and saying, "I spec I will," "performed a disappearance" in Flora Temple time.

"Nip" made his appearance without any assistance, and circumnavigated the horse and vehicle in a series of ricochettes, ending by springing between the Chum's legs, where he sat on his haunches for the rest of the passage, looking over the dash with a strangely compounded gravity and impatience.

Did you ever hunt chickens. Guns poised, treading through the tall blades that are loaded with little bells, and that ring such a merry harvest chime to the august winds—following a canine nose. Then the rustling, the flight, and the graceful acknowledgment on the part of the umber feathers, that turn over in the sunlight, and drop headlong to the earth. You take no note of time or locality. The only well defined idea in your mind is percussion caps. Your sensorium is filled with smoke. You follow the edible ignens fatuus over quagmires that at other times would have been strangulation, so buoyant is one's body when hunting—you crowd through rank underbrush that never before was disturbed—you laugh at thorns that tear your cuticle, and forget all about the "garish eye of day."

This chicken hunt carried me over the threshold of Missouri, and I received as the fruits of my excursion certain pulpy Duchess D'Augouleme, and rose-pink George the Fourths, and a cool, magnificent cluster of Chasselas' grapes—all manufactured out of Missouri soil, painted by a Missouri sun, and nurtured, I might say, also, by and for a Missouri son. I've a particular predilection for fruit; Augouleme pears are a delight—none the less so when chickening. Orchards will do well in this State.

With a carriage full of pinnated dead-heads, we started over the great swell for town. It was late in the day and I felt inclined to endorse WOLF's assertion of the morning. The prairie stretched out monotonously to the four points of the compass, and had it not been for the Chum, who was our "pillar of fire," the goodly city would have been passed by in our search. Allow me to say I cannot see the grandeur of a prairies. I have read about it too often. A field of grass cut in long furrows by the pre-Adamic plough of some earthquake, may be stupendous to the geologist, but to the correspondent is immensely stupid. There is only one way in which I can imagine a prairie suggestive of grand emotions, and that is, supposing yourself lost on one in a snow storm. The Chum pointed to what looked like a little whiff of tobacco smoke sailing up the sky in the distance, and gave me to understand St. Louis was under it. With this assurance, I laid my head against the "spring back," closed my eyes, and let WOLF whistle me into a somniferous state, until we arrived once more at Barnum's Ultimatum. SANS SOUCI.

THE DARIEN SHIP CANAL.—The Navy Department has equipped a force to explore a route for a ship canal across the Isthmus.—The party is instructed to test the statements of the British explorers Cullen and Gisborne, who reported such a depression in the Eastern Cordilleras as to admit of the easy construction of a ship canal, the country thence to the Pacific having no formidable elevation. In case they should fail to find the gap in question, they will be required to traverse a route partially explored by Surgeon Caldwell, of the Navy, in 1857, respecting which the following information was reported to the Department through Com. Mervine:

"1. That the summit level of a route from Principe, on the Pacific, northerly to the Atlantic, is within eight miles of the Savana River, and being but 160 feet above the ocean level will not prove insuperable to engineer-skill in constructing a ship canal.

"2. That there is a low tract of land extending from this summit level east to the Atlantic.

"3. That a gap in in the Eastern Cordilleras exists near the northwestern limits of the Caledonia Bay, on the Carribean Sea. From tree-tops near the summit level referred to, such gap in the mountains was descried, and through it the great sea beyond. This was afterwards lost to the view of the explorers by the overlapping of mountain ranges."

The new exploring party are to have every desirable facility for prosecuting their survey, and among other things a balloon, from which observations of the country are to be taken by experienced aeronants.

"But see, here is a great man and no mistake! That is the world-renowned Lord Brougham and Vaux. He is not going to the Commons, we will venture to say that he never does. No; you see him turned the other way. What a queer-looking character it is! See how loosely his clothes hang about him. That hat of his, too, how closely it is pulled over his brow. It is not, however, a whim of his to wear it so, but necessity compels him, for his forehead is so large that he would never keep his hat on unless he were to pull it over his brow. He looks very old now, and well he may, for he is in or over his eighty-first year. For such an age he walks well; and see how volubly he is chatting to the friend on whose arm he hangs. It would be worth something now to know what he is talking about;—perhaps our foreign relations, or it may be the last discovered fossilized fish, or the Palace of the People at Muswell-hill, or some new machine, or fresh theory of light, or—but it is in vain to conjecture, for what subject is there that comes amiss to Harry Brougham? His head is a perfect museum, and perhaps it would be easier to say what he cannot talk about than what he can. There is a joke abroad that one day at a conversazione he was talking learnedly about a Hindoo poem written 500 years B. C., when suddenly, on some hint given, he began to discourse with equal knowledge on the philosophy of cooking a beefsteak."

A GREAT DEAL of disappointment and ill-feeling was witnessed in this village on Tuesday last, by the failure of Judge McArthur to appear and open his Court at the time appointed. Parties had come from all parts of the county, with business that was important to them, and not a few were a little profane in their comments on the Court.—A despatch was received from the Judge, stating that sickness in his family prevented his coming, which, of course, was a reasonable excuse. We hope the Judge will yield to a very general desire, and appoint a special term as soon as possible.—Waukesha Freeman, Aug. 23rd.

☞ WHAT HOLLANDERS THINK OF BOERHAVE'S HOLLAND BITTERS.—J. QUINTUS, Editor of the Sheboygan Nieuwsbode, in a letter dated September 6th, 1854, thus remarks:—

"You will observe that I have published several certificates lately. These are not mere 'puffs,' but literally true; and should you continue advertising with us, you may expect to secure large orders, from every Holland settlement in the United States."

This is an extract from one of the many letters received from the Holland settlements. Surely when Hollanders recommend the Holland Bitters so warmly, Americans may not hesitate in testing its virtues for themselves.

TESTIMONIAL.

BOSTON, July 19, 1857.

MESSRS. J. BURNETT & Co.—I cannot refuse to state the salutary effect in my own aggravated case, of your excellent Hair Oil—(Cocoaine.)

For many months my hair has been falling off, until I was fearful of losing it entirely. The skin upon my head became gradually more and more inflamed, so that I could not touch it without pain. This irritated condition I attributed to the use of various advertised hair washes, which I have since been told contain camphene spirit.

By the advice of my physician, to whom you had shown your process of purifying the Oil, I commenced its use the last week in June. The first application allayed the itching and irritation; in three or four days the redness and tenderness disappeared—the hair ceased to fall, and I have now a thick growth of new hair. I trust that others, similarly afflicted, will be induced to try the same remedy.

Yours, very truly,
SUSAN R. POPE.

BAD COUGH, RAISING BLOOD, NIGHT SWEATS CURED.—Mr. Artemus Rudder, of Niles, writes,

For four months I have been troubled with a very bad cough. I got so bad lately that I have at times raised large quantities of blood and some pus. This frightened me, for I thought I had the Consumption. Night after night I was bathed in sweat; so that I was, when I came under your treatment, little better than a "withered bud." I commenced the use of the Ready Relief, Resolvent, Regulators, and Regulators, which I got from Dr. J. Lorimore, of this place. I bathed my chest and throat with Ready Relief, took the Resolvent three times per day, internally, and from one to three Regulators every night. The first night I took the Relief and Resolvent, I slept in peace. I have had no distress from my cough since that night. In two weeks I was completely restored. Have now a good appetite, and am growing quite fat. Very truly,

Niles, Mich., Sept. 30, '52. ARTEMUS RUDDER.

MY MOTHER'S VOICE.

My mother's voice! I hear it now,
I feel her hand upon my brow
As when, in heavenly joy,
She raised her evening hymn of praise,
And called down blessings on the days
Of her loved boy.

My mother's voice! I hear it now!
Her hand is on my burning brow
As in that early hour,
When fever throbbed through all my veins,
And that kind hand first soothed my pains,
With healing power.

My mother's voice! It sounds as when
She read to me of holy men,—
The Patriarchs of old:—
And gazing downward in my face,
She seemed each infant thought to trace,
My young eyes told.

It comes—when thoughts unhallowed throng,
Woven in sweet deceptive song,—
And whispers round my heart
As when, at eve, it rose on high—
I hear and think that she is nigh,
And they depart.

Though round my heart, all, all beside—
The voice of friendship, love, had died—
That voice would linger there,
As when, soft pillowed on her breast,
Its tones first lulled my infant rest,
Or rose in prayer.

OUR FARM OF TWO ACRES.

BY HARRIET MARTINEAU.

Half a century ago there was a good deal of sauciness in the temper and manners of people who had the management of land.—The great landholders were introducing improvements, the smaller farmers were giving up an unprofitable game, and the large farmers—trusting in the Cornlaws—claimed to have their own way, did not care to study their art, unless they lived near Mr. Coke or the Duke of Bedford, and laughed at everybody who attempted tillage on a small scale.

This sauciness brought out Wm. Cobbet, with his strong spirit of antagonism, to contradict every insolent saying, and almost every received maxim of the class; and he broadly and positively declared that a cow and a pig could be kept on a quarter of an acre of land. He explained in detail how this might be done; and a great number of people have followed his instructions, finding, for the most part, that though the thing might be practicable for one year, or occasionally at intervals, yet it is not true that, one year with another, a cow and pig can be kept on a quarter of an acre of land.

Since the repeal of the Corn laws great changes have taken place in the general mind as to what quantity of land will and will not repay the efforts of the husbandman. The prodigious improvements which have been introduced into agriculture have benefitted small properties as well as large; and the same science and art which render it good economy to spend thousands of pounds on the tillage of a large farm enable the intelligent husbandman to obtain from a few rods an amount of value which nobody but Cobbet dreamed of in the last generation. We do not know that the regular "small farming" of a former century has as yet revived among us; the competition of the holder of thirty or fifty acres with the tenant of a thousand; but the experiment of making the most of two or three acres is at present one which attracts a good deal of attention. There are few signs of the times in economy and social affairs more thoroughly worthy of the interest it has excited.

There are two classes of persons, broadly speaking, to whom this experiment is of consequence—the husbandman who lives by his land, and gentry, especially ladies, who happen to have a little ground attached to their dwellings, from which it is just as well to derive comfort and luxury, or pecuniary profit as not. Two remarkable and very interesting statements have been published on the part of these two classes; and I, the present writer, am about to offer a third, in order to render the presentment of the case of miniature farming complete.

John Stillet, the Suffolk shopkeeper, who forsook the shop and took to the spade, recovering his health and maintaining his family in comfort on two acres of land, has given us his experience in his well known pamphlet of seven years ago, of "Fork and Spade Husbandry." The great extension of Freehold Land Societies affords to a multitude of townsmen in England the means of leaving town industry for rural independence, as John Stillet did, if they choose to work as he did, and it seems probable that a future generation may see a revival of the order of peasant proprietors in this country which was supposed to have died out forever. As to the other class to whom small farming may easily be made answer, we have just been presented with an admirable description of it in the little volume called Our Farm of Four Acres and the Money we Made by It. In my opinion the book is too tempting. The statements, each one no doubt true in itself, will require some modification when taken to represent the first six years, instead of the experiment; but the narrative is so fresh and animated—the example of enterprise and energy is so wholesome, and the scheme of life is so wise that the book must be a real boon to a class of Society which sorely needs such aid—the class of gentlewomen who have not enough to do. We hear a great deal of the penalties of an unnatural mode of life endured by single and widowed women in confined circumstances, who pine away their lives in towns; and we see many who do not suffer from poverty, losing health and energy for want of interesting occupation. If this book should only introduce one in a hundred of these languid women to try a country life, with the amusement of a little farming in a safe way, it will have been a blessing to our generation.

John Stillet's experiment was one of fork and spade husbandry exclusively. Mine is one of intermediate order. I do not derive the subsistence of a household from my two acres; nor do I keep cows and pigs on the easy conditions of a plentiful allowance of grass and arable land with the, resource of a right of common to serve at every pinch. I am obliged to keep a considerable portion of my little plot in grass; but my main dependence for the subsistence of my cows is on fork and spade husbandry. Thus like the ladies, I keep cows for comfort and luxury, to which I may add the serious consideration of creating a subsistence for a laborer and his wife; while with John Stillet, I obtain the value of the ground and animals chiefly by tillage instead of merely gathering in the expensive commodity of grass. The case is this:

I bought a field in order to build myself a house in a beautiful valley in the North of England. The quantity of land was somewhat less than two acres and a quarter, of which more than half an acre was rock. On the rocky portion stands the house, with its terrace and the drive up to it, and a little oak and sycamore, and ash copses behind and flanking it. An acre and a quarter was left in grass, which I at first let for £4 10s. a year. Enough ground was left for a few vegetable and flower beds, which the women of the household took such care of as they could. At the end of a year from our entrance upon our pretty house on the field, the state of things was this. The meadow was a constant eyesore; for the tenant took no sort of care of it. His cow was there, rain or shine, without shelter or shade, and usually one way or another. The grass was lumpy and weedy. Sheep burst in through the hedge on the South boundary, that hedge being no business of mine, but belonging to the tenant on the other hand, it was a broad, straggling, weedy hedge, which harbored vermin, and sent showers of seeds of pestilent weeds into my garden; and as sure as my cabbages began to grow, the hungry sheep sharpest as they are in March, made their way in, and ate off a whole crop in the night. It cost me from £6 to £10 a year to hire an occasional gardener, by whom the aspect of the place was barely kept decent.

At the same time my household was badly off for some essential comforts. The supply of milk in our neighborhood could never be depended on; and it failed when it was most wanted—in the travelling season when the district was thronged with strangers. During that season, even the supply of meat was precarious. Fowls, hams, eggs, butter, everything was precarious or unattainable; so that housekeeping was, in the guest season, a real anxiety.

Becoming nearly desperate under difficulties which town folks scarcely dreampt of, I ventured upon the experiment—more bold eleven years ago than now—of using my own patch of land for the production of comforts for my own household. I have made this explanation because I wish to be clearly understood that I did not propose to make money by my miniature farming, and should never have undertaken it with any such view. I could not afford to lose money. The experiment must pay itself or stop. But, here was the land with its attendant expenses; here were our needs and discomforts; the experiment was to make one compensate the other. At the end of eleven years, I find that the plan has been unquestionably successful, though some of the estimates of the first two or three seasons had been modified, and average of agricultural mishaps has occurred, as if to render the enterprise a fair specimen. It has, on the whole, been sufficiently successful to attract a great deal of notice; and influence some proceedings in the neighborhood; and, therefore, as I conceive to justify by adding one more illustration to those which already exist of making the most of a small area of land.

The first essential was a laborer. I obtained one from an agricultural county, as spade husbandry was a thing unheard of in my own neighborhood. He brought his wife; and his wages were at first 12s. a week, out of which he paid the low rent of 1s. 6d. per week for his cottage, a model cottage which I built, with the cow-house adjoining, for £130. These stone dwellings last forever, and need few or no repairs, so that money is well invested in them; and I regard as a good investment the money afterwards laid out in a hay house, a little boiling house, a root house, two fowl yards, and a commodious stone dwelling for the pig. My man's wages were raised by degrees; and they are now 14s. a week all the year round, with the cottage rent free. The wife has the use of my wash house and its apparatus, and the opportunity of earning a good deal by means of them.—In case of my scheme not answering, there was a certainty that the cottage and other buildings would let at any moment, with the land; while their quality would not deteriorate with time, like that of brick or wooden buildings.

The other requisite preparations were tanks for manure, implements, and some additional fencing. Two tanks, well cemented within, and covered by heavy stone lids, receive the sewerage and slops of every kind, from the house, cottage and cow stable, and a large tank, among a clump of trees in a far corner of the field receives the sweepings of the stable and stye, and the bulk of the manure. The implements are spades, an elastic steel fork, hoes, rakes, a scythe, shears and clippers a heavy roller for the meadow, a chaff-cutter, a curry-comb, and brushes for the cows' coats; troughs, milk-pails, and the apparatus of the boiling-house and dairy; to which were afterwards added a barrel on wheels to receive soapsuds and other slops at back doors, for the manure pit; a garden engine of large powers, and a frame and hand glass for the kitchen garden. About a third part of these implements were necessary for the mere garden which we attempted so unprofitably before we had a laborer on the premises.

I am not going to speak of our dairy affairs now; I will do so hereafter; but my present subject is the tillage of the soil; and I will therefore say no more here about cows than that we began with one, and finding that we could keep two for almost as little trouble as one—the stable and man being provided—I rented another half acre adjoining my field, at £1 15s. a year, and kept two cows, thus securing a supply of milk for the whole year. We produce food enough for about a cow and a half, besides vegetables and fruit for the household, and find it answer too by the requisite addition to the winter food, as I will explain at another time.

Shipments.

To Collingwood ....

The wheat market to-day exhibited no material change from yesterday. The sales were somewhat more numerous, in consequence of an increase in receipts, and the firmness before noticed fully sustained. There were sales of old No. 1 spring at 56@56c, and of fall new club at 71@75c, and of extra do at 75@76c. There was a moderate inquiry for flour, and sales of a few lots at $3,75@3,85 for country brands spring extra, and $4,25 for white winter. Oats sold at 23½c on track—½c better than yesterday. Corn is unchanged, sales of shelled at 42½c. No change to note in other articles.

CHICAGO, August 23.—Receipts: 3,069 bbls flour, 42,958 bus wheat, 54,284 bus corn, 12,629 bus oats, 2,503 bus barley. Shipments: 1,900 bbls flour, 16,040 bus wheat; 39,000 bus corn.

The wheat market opened very firm this morning for all grades, and the full prices of yesterday were freely paid, in some instances even an advance of 1@2c. Before the close, however, buyers who were operating principally to fill out cargoes, withdrew, and the market declined 1@2c from the highest figures reached in the morning. There was a fair demand for red winter, and for No. 2 an advance of 1@2c was paid. No. 1 white continues very scarce, and in good demand both by millers and shippers. The transactions to-day foot up about 38,000 bushels of all grades, at 92c for No. 1 red; 78@79c for No. 2 red; 86c for No. 2 white; 79@80c for No. 1 spring; and 76@77c for No. 2 spring—the market closing quiet at the highest figures. Flour was heavy, and 5c lower, with little or no demand.—Corn opened very firm at 42c for No. 1 in store, but declined 1c before the close. The day's transactions foot up about 18,000 bushels, at 42@42½c for canal afloat; 41@42c for No. 1 in store; and 40c for No. 2 in store—closing quiet, but firm at the inside quotations. Oats were in good demand steady at yesterday's figures. About 19,000 bushels were sold at 25½@25½c for No. 1 in store, and 25¾c for canal afloat. Rye dull and declined 2@3c—with sales at 52@54c for No. 1 in store. A small lot of new No. 2 barley was sold at 85c in store. Timothy seed was more active, and about 850 bushels were sold at $1,55 delivered. No clover offering. Highwines quiet at 23@23½. Alcohol, 51c. Dry salted shoulders in bulk are in request—with sales at 6¾c. Bacon shoulders scarce and firm at 7¼@8. Canvassed hams, 10@11c. No plain in market. Hides dull.

MILWAUKEE DAILY MARKET.

Wednesday—P. M.

Receipts.—Little or nothing offering to ship, and rates unchanged.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

—TO—

MILLWRIGHTS AND OWNERS.

The Excelsior Water Wheel Co.

ARE MANUFACTURING A NEW KIND of Water Wheel, patented 11th May, and 14th December, 1858, and 15th March, 1859, which involves an entirely new principle of obtaining power, and of conducting the water to it, which we claim a greater maximum power than is afforded by any other wheel now in use. Some of the advantages of this wheel are:

1st. We obtain the ENTIRE WEIGHT of the water, and have the advantage of the full head and fall, from water to wheel.

2d. It surpasses all other wheels in velocity and power.

3d. It is perfectly under the control of the workmen, either when used to drive a large or small amount of machinery, as the strength of the wheel is not diminished by reducing the action, as it corresponds upon the WEIGHT of the column of water below the wheel, which always remains about the same.

4th. It occupies less space than any other wheel—is placed inside, near the bottom of the DRAFT of the water, and is never affected by frost.

5th. The wheel is very durable, being made of iron, and can be put in its place and started without stopping Grist Mills, Saw Mills, and machinery of all kinds, with LESS expense than any other wheel. The velocity of the wheel when working under the pressure of 16 ft is avoided for nearly all purposes.

Together with the advantages above stated, we are ready to warrant the Wheel to possess a power equal to the following figures, for each foot fall of water

Ginch wheel		52,100 horse-power.

Wheels of the above sizes make from 400 to 1000 revolutions per minute. When sold, are complete with Iron Penstock, Governor, and Gate Valve, ready to put in place in the flume, which can be done with less expense than any other wheel.

The Company have the most skilful workmen, who will put them in any place in workmanlike manner, at reasonable rates. The Wheels can be furnished at less price than any other wheels now in use.

W. E. STURGESS, Sec'y, Troy, N. Y.

CERTIFICATES.

MIDDLETOWN, Ct., Dec. 1, 1858.

DEAR SIR—In answer to your favor asking my opinion of the Excelsior Water Wheel which you have put into my factory for me, I take great pleasure in stating that it has exceeded my expectation. I took out a 6 inch Wheel 16 feet in diameter, by 9 inch Buckets, and replaced it with one of "Fairchild's Patent" 15 inches, and it gives more power, with no greater amount of water, and the motion is as steady as that of a steam engine. It has also the advantage of being very cheap. Yours truly,

It operates under a 9 feet head and fall, and carries with equal regularity and steadiness a greater or less amount of machinery, "such as is required for the manufacturing of tire arms," whereas an increase of machinery upon my old Wheels would materially lessen the speed.

It is without doubt the best Wheel I have ever used, and my experience in Water Wheels extends over a period of 30 years. Any one interested in Water Wheels will be convinced of its superiority (however skeptical) if he will take the trouble of calling at my factory and see its performance.

I am, yours, respectf lly,

H. N. RICE, Supt.

SHELDON, Franklin Co., Vt., June 20, 1858.

DEAR SIR—I have one of Mr. Fairchild's Wheels in operation at my Saw Mill, with which I can recommend to the public with perfect confidence. As regarding all the advantages which are claimed for it, the Wheel which I have in use is worth a dollar per power. It gives more power, and runs more steadily than the twelve feet Breast Wheel, which I have heretofore used, requiring less water to do the same head and fall.

H. CARLISLE.

Many other testimonials from heavy eastern manufacturers may be seen at my office. Here, the public are invited to call and examine this wheel, and where they will at all times be kept on hand to supply the demand. Any wheel is now running the Planing Mill and other Machinery necessary for the manufacture of Sash, Doors and Blinds at the manufactory of M. V. Bailey, Grace street, Joliet, Ill., where any and all are invited to call and examine it under peculiar test, and a motion of 70 revolutions per minute. For further particulars address the
